Bank Provides Day of Educational Fun at Local QSAC

Metropolitan Commercial Bank Volunteers at Quality Services for the Autism Community Preschool

NEW YORK, N.Y. — November 1, 2017 – Metropolitan Commercial Bank’s retail banking teams from its Manhattan, Boro Park and Great Neck banking centers recently participated in a day of service at Quality Services for the Autism Community (QSAC) Preschool and Early Childhood Center in Douglaston, Queens. The day-long program provided banking center team members and QSAC students the chance to interact and develop a relationship based on enhancing the students’ educational experiences.

“We were once again thrilled to have this opportunity to support QSAC, spend time with students, and play a role in these very special children’s classroom experience,” stated Laura Capra, Metropolitan Commercial Bank’s Senior Vice President and Head of Retail Banking. “Our team is always looking for innovative ways to engage with organizations throughout the New York metropolitan area, and we are fortunate to have developed a lasting relationship with a community organization such as QSAC that truly does meaningful work.”

QSAC is a New York City- and Long Island-based nonprofit organization that supports children and adults with autism by providing a range of educational services. Bank representatives spent the day helping teachers, reading children’s books to students and participating in several academic and recreational activities with the children. This marks the second time Bank members have visited QSAC. QSAC students have also visited the Great Neck banking center for a financial literacy event. Metropolitan Commercial Bank makes an annual donation to help support QSAC’s ongoing efforts to advocate for children and adults with autism.

“Our students always enjoy spending time with volunteers from Metropolitan Commercial Bank,” said Lisa Veglia, QSAC’s Chief Executive Officer. “These types of experiences help to enrich the learning experience that we provide our students. Establishing partnerships, like the one we have with Metropolitan Commercial Bank, is essential to QSAC’s goal of strengthening our connections to the local community.”
